The eastern Mediterranean seaboard had for a long time been recognised as a region of increasing connectivity between the key players in the region: Pharaonic Egypt in the south, Mesopotamia (modern day Iraq) and the Levantine coast of modern day Syria, Lebanon and Israel-Palestine to the east, and palatial Minoan Crete to the west.

Late Bronze Age trade in the eastern Mediterranean

The Late Bronze Age Collapse was a transition period in the Near East, Anatolia, the Aegean region, North Africa, the Caucasus, the Balkans and the Eastern Mediterranean from the Late Bronze Age to the Early Iron Age, a transition which historians believe was violent, sudden, and culturally disruptive. The palace economy of the Aegean region and Anatolia that characterised the Late Bronze Age disintegrated, transforming into the small isolated village cultures of the Greek Dark Ages. The half-ce
